TROUBLE IN WATERBURY FACTORIES
Waterbury, Conn., April 22.—The situation created by the striking of approximately 5,000 unskilled factory laborers in this city remains unchanged. Factory officials reported that a few more workers left the plants today but the number of strikers has not been increased to any great extent. Manufacturers have refused thus far to recognize the demands submitted by the local union of unskilled laborers affiliated with the A. F. of L., demanding an eight hour day and 75 cents as a minimum wage. A committee of thirty, representing the various branches of the New England Workers' association, held a meeting this morning to draw up demands to be presented to the manufacturers. The demands will differ from those already presented in that they will ask for recognition of shop committees. The strikers have named the committee the "Industrial Council" to indicate their determination to win the strike. The demands will be presented to the workers for approval at a mass meeting to be held this afternoon. Manufacturers have taken the stand that wages in this city compare favorably with those of other manufacturing communities and are determined to "fight" the strike, according to reports. About 30 employees of the Waterbury Clock company joined the walk-out this morning.
